The 'O' Antiphons of the final days of Advent

“The Roman Church has been singing the “O” Antiphons since at least the 8th century. They are the antiphons that accompany the Magnificat canticle of Evening Prayer from December 17th–23rd. They are a magnificent theology that uses ancient biblical imagery drawn from the messianic hopes of the Old Testament to proclaim the coming Christ as the fulfillment not only of Old Testament hopes, but present ones as well. Their repeated use of the imperative “Come!” embodies the longing for the Divine Messiah.”
USCCB

December 17: O Sapientia

O Wisdom of our God Most High, guiding creation with power and love:
come to teach us the path of knowledge!

December 18: O Adonai

O Leader of the House of Israel, giver of the Law to Moses on Sinai:
come to rescue us with your mighty power!

December 19: O Radix Jesse

O Root of Jesse's stem, sign of God's love for all his people:
come to save us without delay!

December 20: O Clavis David

O Key of David,
opening the gates of God's eternal Kingdom:
come and free the prisoners of darkness!

December 21: O Oriens

O Radiant Dawn,
splendor of eternal light, sun of justice:
come and shine on those who dwell in darkness and in the shadow of death.

December 22: O Rex Gentium

O King of all nations and keystone of the Church:
come and save man, whom you formed from the dust!

December 23: O Emmanuel

O Emmanuel, our King and Giver of Law:
come to save us, Lord our God!

THE BOREDOM OF SIN

by Father Rees

Typically during Advent, priests will listen to easily several hundred confessions, absolving penitents who dutifully present themselves to the sacrament of forgiveness, the presence of Christ through the instrument of the priesthood. Every priest is heartened by the sincerity and devotion of those who come for their "Advent duty". Yet, truthfully, hearing confessions is tedious business for many priests. Why?

Because sin is boring!

When St. Paul wrote to the Ephesians about putting aside the old self so that we could put on the New Man, he meant to convey the idea that the old way of life of sin and corruption, of misguided desires and false hopes, was just that - old! In fact, sin is nearly as ancient as creation itself. The writer of Ecclesiastes (a man named Qoheleth) captured the tedium of the world and its sin when he said:

All things are wearisome. No one can say that eyes have not had enough of seeing, ears their fill of hearing. What was, will be again, what has been done, will be done again, and there is nothing new under the sun!

Sheer futility. All of it. His words express the sorrow at how fleeting our experience of goodness and joy in this life can be and how detrimental to our happiness it is when we "do the things we would not do and don't do the things we would." It's hard to argue the point. How injured our world has become to the horrors of violence and war, the scandal of ignorance and want (these were the children the Ghost of Christ Present shows to Ebenezer Scrooge in Dicken's A Christmas Carol). How easily we, and our children, watch movies and television shows with so much violence without blinking an eye. How negligent we've become of the holocaust that abortion has become. Sin is insipid, lifeless, and uninteresting. It is persistent and stupefying. It is soul-destroying.

The cause of our joy then, on this Gaudete Sunday, is the freedom from this world of sin through God's gift to us of a Son. "The Lord of the world did not consider it right to allow human beings, for love of whom everything had been made, to be besieged by sin and to be sold like slaves to death." (Theodoret, from The Cure of Pagan Diseases.) St. Paul exhorts us, in the second reading this Third Sunday in Advent: Rejoice always..... May the God of peace make you perfectly holy and may you entirely, spirit, soul, and body, be preserved blameless for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

To renounce sin and choose to live the life of grace in Christ, in uprightness and holiness of the truth, is to live as a New Man, with minds renewed in spirit, because something new has begun. No more for us the frustration of tasting goodness in this life only to see it disappear. We dare to hope for a new creation, already begun in Christ, which we share in through our baptism and the Holy Eucharist, where everything is new and is ever so!

So fitting for us, then, to seek a cleansing from all sin, from anything that would keep us from taking joy in celebrating the truth of Christmas. This is why we go to confession in Advent (and this is a priest's delight!).

On Monday, Catholic parishes all over the Archdiocese will offer the Sacrament of Reconciliation (Confession) from 4 pm to 8 pm.
