THE FEAST OF THE EPIPHANY

By Father Doughty

So many years ago, when I was living and working in the Holy Land, I had the opportunity to travel on the Feast of the Epiphany with the Greek Orthodox Church to the Jordan River in the Judean Desert. The Camp David accords were not even a dream for the Christians who would travel once a year to this remote spot in what was then "no man's land" (Jordan and Israel were still technically at war) to commemorate the baptism of Jesus in the Jordan River. The Patriarch of Greek Orthodoxy would say a prayer of blessing over the waters, toss a crucifix tied to a string into the river, along with a bouquet of hyssop, and then after reeling it in, bless the assembly with the once-again blessed waters. What appeared to be something of a distraction from the business of celebrating the three kings was really part of the Church's ancient culture, to bring attention to the intimate connection between the earthly nativity of the Second Person of the Trinity and our "heavenly birth." Jesus's baptism reveals the baptism by which we would enter into the life of Christ.

Yet, the Feast of Epiphany also evokes the memory of that first sign of Jesus's divinity recorded in the Gospel of John when Our Lord changed water into wine at the wedding celebration at Cana, marking the union of Christ the Bridegroom with his Bride, the Church. The antiphon for the Benedictus prayer in Lauds conveys the threefold meaning in our celebration: "Today the Church has been joined to her heavenly bridegroom, since Christ has purified her of her sins in the river Jordan: the Magi hasten to the royal wedding and offer gifts: the wedding guest rejoice since Christ has changed water into wines, alleluia."

So wrote St. Peter Chrysologus (380?-450AD): Today the Magi gaze in deep wonder at what they see: heaven on earth, earth in heaven, man in God, God in man, one whom the whole universe cannot contain now enclosed in a tiny body.... Today Christ enters the Jordan to wash away the sin of the world. Today a servant lays his hand on the Lord, a man lays his hand on God, John lays his hand on Christ, not to forgive but to receive forgiveness.... Today Christ works the first of his signs from heaven by turning water into wine... that water may be changed into the sacrament of his blood, so that Christ may offer spiritual drink from the chalice of his body.

Epiphany tells us that Jesus is God's message to us. God says it all, in Jesus! Not surprising, the revealing of Jesus to the world also happens to be the way God reveals the truth to us about ourselves.

Our parish life, its community is an outcome of this mystery and revelation. Our unity in this common sacramental life of the parish's prayer and works is a sign of the presence of Christ in our neighborhood. The Church, and therefore, our parish, is said to be kind of sacrament herself! All her members become in the world what St. Paul called "the body of Christ," and are consequently the way Christ reaches out and continues to reveal his Father's love in time and place. "Now Christ's body is yourselves," wrote the apostle, "each of you with a part to play in the whole." (1 Corinthians 12)

This thought invites us to ponder the great power is given to us to share with others: the victory of life over death. It suggests great responsibility is handed over to us: to announce the freedom of the Sons and Daughters of God who no longer live in the "the shadow of death", "this vale of tears".

In light of these epiphanies, our resolutions for a better year should include promises to ourselves for our spiritual health and eternal life, our relationship with God, and with the Church (and therefore our parish). What does it profit us to gain the world but lose our lives by neglecting our souls? First things, after all, should be first.

Our objective is to send them a care package of cards/letters but, with the delay of delivery time, the cards will arrive around Valentine's Day. Please sign your first name only, but there is no limit to how many you may write. Be your own light and send a letter! Thank you for your support.
